7 New Hampshire Urban Legends That Will Horrify You

One night they met a boy walking through the woods, and charmed him into following them home. Not for the faint hearted! Alas, neither our local nor county library had it. Consider this tale of a man named Alfred Horne, who was harvesting Christmas trees from the woods near his home in New Hampshire in America.

New Hampshire Folk Tales

They're scary because they're about the spooky supernatural happenings, but then they're even scarier when you realize they are really about society persecuting misfits. She will not be liable for any errors or omissions in this information nor for the availability of this information.
