PART 52

The gave the first legal guarantee that the region would not cease to be part of the United Kingdom without the consent of the. Lord Reed seizes upon the happenstance that the Act was passed about 10 weeks before UK membership came into effect; it thus sat there, like an empty conduit, ready for the taps to be turned on when the Treaty of Accession came into force on 1 January 1973 and EU law started pouring through it into the UK legal system. In an 1842 English case, , the postal service had contracted with Wright to maintain its coaches.

The Government and its academic supporters denied that EU law rights could be equated to domestic law rights; this allowed them to argue that their loss through withdrawal from the EU would not breach the long-standing prohibition on Executive prerogative action removing domestic law rights or altering domestic law. There are certain symbols, including poppies and shamrocks, which are considered not to cause offence provided they are worn proportionately and with decorum.

A lower level of recognition was accorded to Ulster Scots, under Part II of the Charter. Where an exercise of the prerogative would have the effect of removing or frustrating such rights, it is for those seeking to justify that outcome to point to clear evidence in the relevant statute that parliament intended, exceptionally, to allow the Executive to do that which would ordinarily be unlawful. The defendant may waive this right but does not often do so.
