And such was the general impression that they were men capable of resisting the legal execution of warning by very effectual means, no king's messenger would execute the summons without the support of a military force. Because it is moments of crisis that thrust values and ideologies into expression and contest, we must expect political crises also to be moments of hermeneutic crisis. The Spekes moved into Somersetshire about the middle of the fifteenth century, in consequence of a marriage with the heiress of Beauchamp, of White Lacking-ton, near Ilminster.

But, if those two august and venerable powers, which had hitherto seemed to be so closely connected that those who were true to one could not be false to the other, should be divided by a deadly enmity, what course was the orthodox Royalist to take? Wendorf, The Elements of Life: Biography and Portrait Painting in Stuart and Georgian England Oxford, 1990, pp. He had long filled lucrative posts, and had neglected no art which could make them more lucrative: but his ill luck at the hazard table was such that his estates were daily becoming more and more encumbered.

And therefore, if straining a point were at all dispensable, it would certainly be so, rather to the advance of unity, than increase of contradiction. Whereas We did by Warrant under Our Eoyal Sign Manual, bearing date the second day of April, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine, and l y subsequent Warrant, authorize and appoint certain noblemen and gentlemen therein respectively named, or any three or more of them, to be Our Commissioners to make inquiry into the places in which documents illustrative of history or of general public interest belonging to private persons are deposited, and to consider whether, with the consent of the owners, means might not be taken to render such documents available for public reference, as by the tenor of the original Commission under Our Sign Manual, dated the second day of April, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine, does more fully and at large appear. Finally, in this reverence for the past and present, we found an earnest that they were prepared to contend to the death for as much liberty as their habits and their knowledge enabled them to receive.
