Not only did he keep the League awake: he kept the light of publicity on Abyssinia.

Caesar in Abyssinia by G.L. Steer

Written with characteristic wit, insight and affection, At War With Waugh is a small classic. The dispute took upon itself the grander dimensions which the British Legation at Addis had always prophesied, which followed directly from the attitude of the Ethiopian Emperor, determined to take his stand upon the Covenant and to resist aggression. Nick Rankin, in his introduction, describes Caesar in Abyssinia as Steer's 'remarkable - and partisan - account of the last great episode of armed colonial conquest in Africa, the Italo-Ethiopian war of 1935-36.
