3.1.14 Reunification Guidance

The early stages of the framework are about deciding whether or not the child should return home.

Teacher education planning handbook

Social Workers should exercise professional judgement in relation to timescales when looking at sustained parental change. However, research has shown that many returns home breakdown and children can experience further maltreatment which results with the children subsequently being taken back into care.

Leeds Mentoring Office

The Strengths and Difficulties Questionnaire SDQ should continue to be carried out at a frequency no less than the statutory minimum. This outcome creates a change of plan decision episode. The date when the work to develop the Return Home Assessment started should be recorded on the Reunification Monitoring Form on Mosaic and the date the assessment was completed.

Handbook of Green Building Design and Construction

However, changes may have been made after a sustained demonstrated improvement over a 6 month period and the risk can reduce to Low Risk. The Social Worker when agreeing parental goals, will look for sustained change and carry out a second Risk Classification Risk Classification 2 within 6 months.

Module and Programme Catalogue

SCOPE OF THIS CHAPTER This chapter sets out the process social work practitioners should follow when deciding whether a child looked after can return home to live with parents or those others who have parental responsibility. Before any further action, the Social Worker must discuss this possibility in supervision with the allocated Team Manager. The plan will include a schedule of visits, taking into consideration key dates required if within court process.
