How to Identify Oriental Rugs

We hope you enjoyed this week's blog post concerning color.

29 Oriental Rugs for Every Space

On the off chance that you discover a mistake don't enable yourself to be deceived. Natural black dyes were made from oak tree galls, iron or tannin. The walls of your house coated in a light blue; the hardwood floor of your kitchen having its brown, tan hues evoked by light; the tint your red curtains reflect as the sun paints against its structure—color is present across an incredible number of avenues.

Choosing Your Oriental Rug's Color

Hues extend from green, red, beige and darker to light summer shades of lime or blue.

Persian Rugs

A reputable store will allow you to try the rug at home for a few days with no obligation. Well and fine, and great advice if you are starting from scratch.

Persian Rugs

Machine made rugs like the one pictured below are often made with a type of nylon or polyester pile, and are generally very uniform in their weave. There are more colors and designs in Oriental rugs to choose from than ever before. Abrash is a shading slightly off the main shade of color.

Choosing Your Oriental Rug's Color

While tightness and regularity of weave are important, the quality of the wool determines the resilience and lasting patina of a rug. Like all, every

Persian rug is painstakingly hand-knotted by skilled artisans over many months.
