The New "Book of Hours"

Meiss and subsequent writers have argued that the full-page miniatures that data show were inserted on single leaves were not originally designed for the Très Riches Heures including the Anatomical Man, folio 14v; The Fall, folio 25r; the Meeting of the Magi, folio 51v; the Adoration of the Magi, folio 52r; the Presentation, folio 54v; the Fall of the Rebel Angels, folio 64v; Hell, folio 108r; the Map of Rome, folio 141v. Artists from Ghent and Bruges produced this remarkable Book of Hours between the end of the fifteenth century and the beginning of the sixteenth century. That alone is w Impressive!
