Is your lordship really serious? Most wigs were made from human hair. The prisoner desired he might be carried before a magistrate, that he might know his crime before he was punished; but Bambridge refused, and put irons upon his legs which were too little, so that in forcing them on his legs were like to have been broken, and the torture was impossible to be endured.

Edward Wortley Montagu (diplomat)

Prone to excessive indulgence in both women and drink, and leaving huge debts behind wherever he went, in the autumn of 1734, having come of age, he finally gave Anderson the slip and returned to England incognito. No handkerchief, but up to her chin a kind of horseman's coat, made of a dark green green I think it had been brocade, with coloured and silver flowers, and lined with furs ; bodice laced, a foul dainty petticoat sprig'd, velvet muffeteens on her arms, gray stockings and slippers.

Medical missionaries tried to establish centres in both Hong Kong and Shanghai in 1844,40 though they could not help more than a small part of this vast country.

Turkish Embassy Letters: The Letters

This was an announcement she scarcely expected to hear. What turn it will take time will discover. The evidence that it was smallpox is flimsy, but the diagnosis is plausible since smallpox was about both in the Middle East and in Europe.

The parsons, indeed, say we are all equal, and all the same, God wot! It includes 49 reading glasses, 32 telescopes, and 145 pairs of spectacles. She herself had had the disease shortly after her marriage and, according to one account, her daughter Anne was just then severely ill with suspected smallpox.
