The Romance of Diplomacy V2: Historical Memoir of Queen Carolina Matilda of Denmark, Sister to King George the Third

It is singular that each should have given an elaborate allegorical description of Despair, as if to try how closely they could follow their master in one of his most celebrated performances. BOWEN, Emanuel, A Complete System of Geography, 2 vols.

Full text of correspondence of King George the Third with Lord North from 1768 to

On the death of his lordship's maternal grandfather, his mother had succeeded him on December 2nd, 1744, as Countess of Ruglen ; his first title, Earl of Selkirk, descending to his grandnephew, Dunbar Hamilton, Esq. Whosoever shall be known to neglect the feeding of his horse with necessary provender, to the end that his horse be disabled or unfit for service ; the party, for the said default, shall suffer a month's imprisonment, and afterwards be cashiered as unworthy the name of a soldier.

Millar and supply her, they write to me about some taxes which I wish you would pay. The Duke was prevented from being present, but appointed a deputy to look after his interests and acquaint him with the result. To show what progress he is making in this requisite, he quotes with a good deal of self-satisfaction a Latin hexameter and pentameter distich of his own making, on a given theme, which he also quotes.
