Heritage Train Tours of Wales

Mid-range Preswylfa guest house, very close to Tywyn Station, has a range of rooms and distant views of Cadair Idris. This hotel enjoys one of the nicest positions of any hotel we use with the sea lapping against the prom just 20 yards from the front door and beautiful sunsets dipping behind the pier. In 2021, trains resume the first week of February and run through to the end of March when a daily service returns.

My Day Out on the Talylyn Railway

They did not let people ride the trains on Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday. This photograph is of a locomotive that was used by the was the first thing donated to the Narrow Gauge Railway Museum.

Talylyn — Great Little Trains of Wales

The standard gauge was expanding rapidly from its base at Machynlleth however. Between 1947 and 1949, people could ride the train two days a week. All the trains are steam-hauled, often by one of the original, 150-year-old locomotives.

Part 6: The world's first preserved railway

This fictional railway formed part of children's books by. It was not popular and most people did not want to buy it.

Part 6: The world's first preserved railway

Retrace the quarrymans journey into the hills to mine slate. The is much shorter than the Talylyn. The agreement included that the Haydn Jones family would continue to appoint some of the directors to the TR company board and that in the event of the scheme failing the family would get the first £1350, and in February 1951 the TRPS took over the railway.

Talylyn Railway ~ Everything Tywyn

You can read more about the history of the railway, and how it was taken over in 1951 by the Talylyn Railway Preservation Society, on.

Talylyn Railway Facts for Kids

Trains, which are limited to 13 compartments due to social distancing to keep passengers safe, are running at more than 90% full, matching the same time last year, and advance bookings for September are very promising. We also went around the museum which was very interesting. This is thought to match the gauge at Corris Railway.
