The first major demonstrations in this new situation started in Riga in 1986, followed by Tallinn in 1987. On 17 August 1940 it became the Baltic Special Military District, changing its boundaries to control troops on the territory of , Latvian, and Lithuanian Soviet Socialist Republics.

Nationalities in the USSR

During the course of 1990, all three Baltic republics declared their formal independence from the Soviet Union. The Soviet Union was a multi-national empire from the revolution of 1917 through the final demise of Communism in 1991.

Nationalities in the USSR

The post-Soviet rulers of the Central Asian republics thus shared a common trajectory, as they were all put into power by the Moscow-based Soviet Communist Party, but remained in power as leaders of newly independent national republics. December Seimas chairman Brazauskas appoints Bronislovas Lubys prime minister of Lithuania.
