Nonetheless, he was not considered to go into battle as he was physically and mentally unfit. But posterity may have a word to say.

The Paris Review

In 1910, de Chirico graduated from his studies in Munich and joined his family in Milan, Italy.

Giorgio de Chirico A Metaphysical Journey ARTBOOK

In early 1919, de Chirico had his first solo show at the Galleria Bragaglia in Rome. In these works Ariadne is seen from various angles, horizontally, vertically, and close-up. After two years of studying at the institution, he took time to educate himself and that he showed a keen interest in the philosophical works of people like Friedrich Nietzsche and Arthur Schopenhauer.

Biography of Giorgio de Chirico, Italian Artist

Deemed physically unfit for battle, De Chirico was stationed to work in a hospital.
