Who determines what beliefs and practices will guide your church? In other words, no association, convention, society, or individual makes these decisions for the local congregation. Each subcommittee selects its own foreman and secretary, and has the privilege of proposing a direct answer to the query, suggesting it be resolved locally, or recommending it be laid down.

A BAPTIST MANUAL OF POLITY & PRACTICE, SECOND REV ED

Baptist Principles, Practices and Polity, by T. Whitsitt Baptist Heritage Society In 1607, a small group of English Separatists led by JOHN SMYTH and THOMAS HELWYS migrated to Holland to avoid religious persecution.

Baptist Church Polity and Practice 168 Law & Justice

One in 1611 required every person arriving in the colony to go to an Episcopal minister and give an account of his religious views. Requests for significant changes in the conference format either by the COA or others should be submitted to the brotherhood assembly.

Ecclesiastical polity

They then joyfully submit to those pastors insofar as these men live in a manner consistent with the biblical qualifications for an elder, teach sound doctrine, and proclaim the good news. Congregational Polity and Baptist Confessions of Faith Baptists have explained their congregational polity in their confessions of faith since the 1600s. Not only do Baptists affirm that an individual's soul is competent to decide issues of faith; they also affirm that people have free access to God through the sacrifice of Christ Jesus.

Primitive Baptist Beliefs and Worship Practices

The deacon body is to be a servant body, not a board of directors. Also, episcopal polity is not usually a simple. They do not separate services by age groups.
