Russia: Timeline

Even the use of native languages — for example Polish in Polish schools — was selectively banned and the learning of Russian made compulsory in some of the non-Russian borderlands. It also clearly identified the problem of the relationship between the revolutionary intelligentsia and the narod, a problem which Zaichnevsky tackled by proclaiming that the revolutionary masses must be led by a disciplined, centralized party organization which would, moreover, establish a post-revolutionary dictatorship to supervise the introduction of the new social and political institutions.

The Russian Revolution Timeline

The firm expectation of international revolution in Europe was uppermost in his mind when the Bolsheviks launched their own revolution in October.

History of Russia (1855

Nevertheless, however flawed, the reformed judicial system did go a long way to meet standards of impartial justice, and the courts provided both a forum and another opportunity for the public voicing of non-conformist and critical opinion. Tkachev impatiently exhorted the intelligentsia to organize itself for revolutionary action and to lead the masses in both the destruction of the old order and the construction of the new.
