Labadists

Those who were associated with Sluyter and Danckers in this land transaction were all professed converts to Labadism. When Cornelius van Sommelsdyk went out to Surinam as governor in 1683, a body of Labadists sought an asylum there; however, the climate of Surinam being unsuitable, Sluyter and Danckaerts were sent to find a place for another colony. The deed was executed to Peter Sluyter alias Vorstman , Jasper

Danckers alias Schilders, of Friesland , Petrus Bayard, of New York, and John Moll and Arnold de la Grange in company.
