Treaty of York

John Allen , 1808-1884, ed.

1235

Again, we excommunicate and anathematize him, because he will not permit certain.

Matthew Paris's English history. From the year 1235 to 1273 2 by Paris, Matthew, 1200

After discussing several matters, he came to one praiseworthy determination, which was, that all the sheriffs should be dismissed, and others appointed in their places, because they had been corrupted by bribes and deviated from the paths of truth and justice. Earl Richard, tried all the shifts that he could, and demanded time for deliberation, in order to give a more siitable answer to their demands ; and accord- ingly, at the instance of those who asked for it although after much difficulty , he was allowed time till the day after the first Sunday in Lent.
