The terrible difficulty had vanished, and Gondokoro was linked with the outer world from which it had been excluded. An acclaimed sportsman, he likely started hunting in the Scottish Highlands; his skills were renowned, and he once gave a demonstration to friends in Scotland of how he could, with dogs, successfully hunt down a stag armed only with a knife, he did the same with the large boars in the jungles of Ceylon. So serious is this obstacle to navigation, that unless a new channel can be discovered, or the original Nile be reopened, the centre of Africa will be entirely shut out from communication, and all my projects for the improvement of the country will be ruined by this extraordinary impediment.

Ismailia by Baker Samuel White Sir

Each tin box was packed in a deal case, with a number to correspond with the box within. The civilized world will form both judge and jury; if their verdict be favourable, I shall have my reward. In this manner enormous tracts of country were occupied by the armed bands from Khartoum, who could make alliances with the native tribes to attack and destroy their neighbours, and to carry off their women and children, together with vast herds of sheep and cattle.

No vessels have arrived from Cairo, as they only started on 29th August. Fashoda was well situated for this purpose, as it completely dominated the river; but I much doubted my friend's veracity. This is NOT a retyped or an ocr'd reprint.
