

Race, maternity, and the politics of birth control in South Africa, 1910-39

Palgrave Macmillan - South Africa People 2020, CIA World Factbook

Description: -

-

South Africa -- Population policy

Eugenics -- South Africa -- History -- 20th century

Birth control -- Political aspects -- South Africa

Birth control -- South Africa -- History -- 20th century
Race, maternity, and the politics of birth control in South Africa, 1910-39
-Race, maternity, and the politics of birth control in South Africa, 1910-39

Notes: Includes bibliographical references (p. 156-212) and index

This edition was published in 2004

Filesize: 36.22 MB

Tags: #Strengthening #the #Nation's #Mothers #through #Birth #Control

Thomas Dixon, Jr.: Conflicts in History and Literature by Andrew Leiter

The weathering hypothesis and the health of African-American women and infants: evidence and speculations.

Susanne M. Klausen

Postnatal checks of their own health in the weeks after birth were also less likely for Bangladeshi, Pakistani and Black Caribbean women. We were taken into the room at about 10 p. I have done everything, she would not push.

Race, maternity, and the politics of birth control in South Africa, 1910

There is enough Negro blood here to make mulatto the whole Republic. Dixon's evidence of moral decrepitude ranges from the innate character flaws of stupidity, hypersexuality, insolence, and cowardice to crimes of political corruption, robbery, murder, and rape. Those who do not comply are not sanctioned.

SPEAK Magazine (1982)

These interregional romances are matched by a political reunion as well, as Augustus Stoneman—a Northern politician and ardent reconstructionist—finally comes to see the error of his ways. It was interesting that women of Mixed ethnicity were not significantly different from White women in most of the outcomes investigated.

SPEAK Magazine (1982)

If Thuliswa had filed a complaint, an investigation into this case could potentially highlight failures to refer patients to higher level facilities for specialized care, which in South Africa has been identified by NCCEMD as a huge contributor to maternal mortality. Our review showed that it is important to look beyond the immediate relationship between the woman and the midwife in the labour ward, as a range of upstream factors influence the way that interpersonal care is delivered.

Black Women's Maternal Health:

She did not even talk to us or ask us anything.

Related Books

- Artist in residence - the North Country art of Frederic Remington : an exhibition
- Viral and rickettsial infections of man
- Poems of Sir John Beaumont, bart.
- Cities of ancient Greece and Italy - planning in classical antiquity
- Identifying pretreatment change.