Hormonal control of the gastric motor response to feeding: Cross

The use of cross-species blood was toxic to the graft and led to its rapid decline. Ex vivo machine perfusion offers an effective platform to alleviate discordant xenograft rejection by removing the recipient's xenoreactive natural antibodies.

Autotransplanted heart

Cardiopulmonary bypass has evolved from an extremely risky procedure into a safe systematic process, and is practiced daily in thousands of centers throughout the world. Hypothermic machine perfusion HMP 0—8 °C is based on the concept that oxidative energy production by mitochondrial electron transport is sustained at hypothermic temperatures.
