Communications Monitoring Report 2018

Mr Barrett also recommended that another review take place after full deregulation of the Australian telecommunications market in 1997. With communications services now supplied routinely in exchange for personal data provided knowingly, or automatically generated information harvested without full and informed consent, drawing lines between services provided for direct, indirect, or no compensation is increasingly irrelevant. Rather than an administrative tribunal that hears evidence commissioned and presented by third parties, the CRTC must be reinvented with an enhanced focus on strategic foresight and research.

Chris Seidl to the Standing Committee on Access to Information, Privacy and Ethics

This Report is the product of a review of Canada's communications laws including the Broadcasting Act, the Telecommunications Act, and the Radiocommunication Act.

The tables also show that the Australian approach in relation to TI is in line with global trends, and in some cases is slightly ahead of comparable nations.

Key telecommunications laws, regulations and policies in Australia

At the same time, by requiring the CRTC to establish broad conditions of service by way of class, the Telecommunications Act will promote regulatory consistency and accountability.
