Has it always been that way? The true fishes form one class; the elasmobranchs, sharks, and rays, another class; the marsipobranchs, myxinoïd fishes, hag fishes, and lampreys, a class; and the lancelets and cirrostomes, a class. After an initial classification as Neanderthal, they will be assigned to modern humans in a 2011 study. I feel this practice should be outlawed for multiple reasons.
