Every month without fail the song and dance repertoire of the Kabuki plays was changed for each opening and with that the sajiki galleries and takadoma dirt floor boxes were at extra capacity, and the hiradoma dirt floor boxes in front of the stage were at least four deep and right from the start for each opening there was a full house for which the entire arena was opened up. My very childish recollections stayed with me, though perhaps not knowing whether to believe what could possibly have been forced on me by my parents and my older sister.
