DEBATE ON THE ADDRESS. (Hansard, 9 December 1935)

With the mythical who are but names we can do what we will; Lear and Hamlet Shakespeare could cast in the sublimest mould; with the historical we are tied by the historical, and few are great enough to come through the sieve. Stakes, probing and pits were used to detail the progress of melting during the ablation season. Yet it is a verb at the present day, not only in hasty column after column, but in page by deliberate page, and especially in stanza by deliberate stanza.
