Stratigraphic position of fluvial and aeolian deposits in the Żabinko site (W Poland) based on TL dating Mededelingen Werkgroep voor Tertiaire en Kwartaire Geologie 26 2 ; pp. In this paper, the results of the first part of the study are presented. Hence, the overall stratigraphic framework is based on the lithologic comparisons with better-dated successions in the northern Kingdom ; and the tracking of subsurface seismic surfaces into the outcrops.

Jeroen Schokker

LF 12: Sandstone, Massive LF 12. Hyperconcentrated flows transported large blocks of coarse sandstone and caused oversteepened and vertical channel walls , and lobe structures. The flow of fluvial sediments of the Al Khata Formation towards the sea was possibly the result of a fall in sea level induced by another glaciation closer to the South Pole, but not matched in Oman because of the changed geography.

The Causes and Implications of Microstructures in Glacial Sediments

The stratigraphic architecture and the spatial relations among the formations show that the Wajid Group is much thinner in the outcrop belt than hitherto assumed. The quantification of sediment and chemical fluxes from local to global scales became his major subject of research during his postdoc career.

Sedimentology and genesis of glacial deposits in the Goudsberg, Central Netherlands

While the two glacial successions and the Khusayyayn Formation can rather confidently be attributed to the geological time scale, either through seismic correlation or biostratigraphically, the Dibsiyah Formation has not yet been biostratigraphically well dated. Stratigraphically, the Lower Wajid Aquifer System comprises the Dibsiyah and Sanamah formations of Cambrian and Ordovician age; the Upper Wajid Aquifer System is composed of Devonian through Permian units of the Khusayyayn and Juwayl formations.

We refute that interpretation, believing firstly, that the direction of ice movement was in the opposite direction, from northeast to southwest; and secondly, that there was a considerably time gap, possibly of a few million years, between the end of glaciation and deposition of these sands.

The discovery of striated pavements underlying the Al Khlata Formation in the Huqf area indicated that the glaciation was centered close to the Arabian Sea coast. One of the models GeoTOP describes the upper 30m of the subsurface in millions of voxels 100 x 100 x 0.
