I had no introduction to this author but for a few reviews here on GR.

Enemies, A Love Story (1989)

They all have faults - perhaps the largest fault existing in their obsession with this little man, Herman Broder, a man who abandoned his family prior to the war, a man who has no faith in anything least of all himself, a man who lies to everyone in order to get and maintain what he wants. The Maid He is hidden in a hayloft by Yadwiga their maid.

Enemies, A Love Story (1989)

I didn't have the hard copy this time and I don't fully trust the narration in this case.

ENEMIES, A LOVE STORY

About two parakeets: He placed himself firmly next to her on the perch, where they remained motionless til sunup, perhaps getting a taste of the great rest that comes with death, the redeemer of men and animals.

ENEMIES, A LOVE STORY

The characters are sharply defined, and the author tells their stories in a remarkable and straightforward manner. However, upon reading the book, I'm convinced that Singer actually tells us the story of the resilience of three women, all of whom were traumatized by the Holocaust and World War II. Most of the time however he is going from one woman's bed to the next.
