Companion dog

My great uncle was firefighter in 1945 and they had adopted a dalmation for their firestation and it was deaf which isnt good so when the fire alarm went off the dog would still be laying under the fire truck and they had to get it out from under the truck and as you can imagine trying to get the attention of a deaf dog is hard imagine trying in a tense situation where they needed to get out to the fire and put it out.

Companion dog

While a large aquarium might work for a mouse, rats need a cage with multiple levels, similar to a hutch you might buy for a gerbil or hamster. It has an excellent sense of smell and is the best companion for the hunters.
