In the year 1965, the government of India launched the Green Revolution with the help of a geneticist, now known as the father of the Green revolution India M. The authorities arrested more than one hundred workers and charged sixty-four people with crimes connected to the attacks.

Nationalism: Definition, Examples, and History

Both of these arguments are subjective in the sense that, rather than attempting to show how the world must be constituted objectively in order for the highest good to be possible, they purport to show only how we must conceive of the highest good in order to be subjectively capable both of representing it as possible and of fulfilling our duty to promote it. They weren't the only ones.

Rationalism and Its Effects

Early botanists included the English naturalist Sir Hans Sloane, who traveled to Jamaica in 1687 and there recorded hundreds of new plants. The Magyars of Hungary and the Slavs of Bohemia clamoured for national autonomy and constitutional government.
