The Medieval Low Countries (MLC)

In particular, it questions to what extent experiences of exiles, returnees and migrants presented a challenge for families, economic regulation and public order in the French-speaking reconciled provinces Hainaut, Artois and the Walloon Flanders , in the new framework of the pacification and religious normalization. The appeal of Germany in the duchy of Guelders, Aart Noordzijj 6. The decades following the arrival of the first Jesuits in Leuven in 1542 were difficult, and once the Society had finally obtained recognition in the Netherlands, the flourishing Belgian province seems to have been too busy establishing and running colleges, preaching, and writing on topics of spirituality and theology to be too occupied with its own recent history.
