And the Fly-Away Horse seeks those far-away lands You little folk dream of at night- Where candy-trees grow, and honey-brooks flow, And corn-fields with popcorn are white; And the beasts in the wood are ever so good To children who visit them there- What glory astride of a lion to ride, Or to wrestle around with a bear! A dormitory in the Orchard Hill residential area at the University of Massachusetts Amherst also bears Field's name. He is a gentle, pinkish youth,-- Of that there's no denying; Yet when I think of him forsooth, Amandy falls to crying! Eight full page color illustrations by Maxfield Parrish.

Field's father, attorney Roswell Martin Field, was famous for his representation of Dred Scott, the slave who sued for his freedom. Aye, faithful to Little Boy Blue they stand, Each in the same old place-- Awaiting the touch of a little hand, The smile of a little face; And they wonder, as waiting the long years through In the dust of that little chair, What has become of our Little Boy Blue, Since he kissed them and put them there. Thar warn't no places vacant then,--fer be it understood, That wuz the time when talent flourished at that altitood; But thar the stranger lingered, tellin' Raymond 'nd the rest Uv what perdigious wonders he could do when at his best, Till finally he stated quite by chance that he hed done A heap uv work with Dana on the Noo York Sun.
