I would do ever well. No man could ever look round upon a more godlike company of his fellows ; yet we have no record of his relations with any of these but Jonson and Fletcher. Ma y da y , wheli was printed five years after the two last we have ex- amined, is full of the bustle and justle of intrigue which may be expected in such comedies of incident as depend rather on close and crowded action than on fine or forcible character for whatever they may ' merit of success.
