Middle Paleolithic

The rarity of localities containing forest mammal remains indicates the absence of a continuous forest zone during this interval. In Hayonim Cave and Rosh Ein Mor, both the laminar and Levallois methods core reduction strategies were practiced. At that time the region presented an alternation of open treeless landscapes and open forests of spruce and birch.

Mousterian Culture

Meager evidence concerning the vegetal diet was provided by carbonized plants from Kebara Cave. The best-documented late middle Pleistocene site in China is currently the cave of Panxian Dadong ca.

European Russia

The mammoth Transbaikalian assemblage IV also includes woolly rhinoceros, wild yak, and saiga antelope. That is suggested by localities not very numerous in the middle reaches of the Kama River Peshcherny Log, Garchi I. In the late phase of the epi-Paleolithic period, the Sauveterrean culture evolved into the so-called and strongly influenced its southern neighbour, clearly replacing it in Mediterranean Spain and Portugal.

Prehistoric Europe

The more widespread Gravettian culture is no less advanced, at least in artistic terms: sculpture mainly venuses is the most outstanding form of creative expression of such peoples. All three lie within European Russia. One of the earliest dates for an Aurignacian assemblage is greater than 43,000 BC from Bacho Kiro cave in Bulgaria.
