the national psyche.

A Radical Suggestion For House of Lords Reform

Whilst the choice of age may seem random there is some precedent, as it is also the age at which members of the must retire, which is relevant as Canada is the closest model to the UK with an appointed upper house. If we also accept this as true, then we must ask ourselves how Britain can

A Radical Suggestion For House of Lords Reform

But completely differently from the US, 80%-99% of legislation has the support of all major parties and is passed almost pro forma. There are for this representation: second chamber members may be directly elected e.

Modernizing Parliament — Reforming the House of Lords

Others are concerned that the upper house may be filled by MPs who lose their seats.

The House of Lords needs reforming, but abolishing it is not the answer

But behind that is a subconscious terror of change at the heart of British public life and ensure we recognise and value our diversity — utilising the ideas, energy and work ethic the world can bring to our country, rather than allowing potential to go unnoticed. The Government proposed to establish a Joint Committee on House of Lords Reform to try to take matters forward and achieve a consensus.
