The Painting

The works on offer in this collection evoke a special time in New York when a group of artists and their dealers dined and went to bars together, shared ideas and friendship, while simultaneously pursuing their individual goals and ambitions. He started making his first cartoons while still in the service, and became interested in cartooning as a career.

Robert Motherwell, California — Bernard Jacobson Gallery

Buffalo, NY: Albright-Knox Art Gallery, 1969. As New York art went from obscurity to prominence in the 1940s, and witnessed drastic changes over a relatively short period, the Sidney Janis Gallery was the sun around which other planets orbited. Williams shared a studio in the Hamptons with Frank Stella in the 1970s when both artists moved to collage-like painting.

He began the first of these paintings, Woman I, in June 1950, repeatedly changing and painting out the image until January or February 1952, when the painting was abandoned unfinished. On the whole I think it a very good idea that you stand alone, as a still-life painter, or whatever.

Abstract Expressionism 1958

During the early-to-mid-sixties younger art critics , , and added considerable insights into the critical dialectic that continues to grow around abstract expressionism. As he observed: 'There is an element of oriental art in them, that kind of flattening out of planes - and a lot of playing around. Sociology comes to the assistance of consciousness and of chance, whether this be at the level of choice or of the tearing up of posters, of the allure of an object, of the household rubbish or scraps of the dining-room, of the unleashing of mechanical susceptibility, of the diffusion of sensibility beyond the limits of its perception... At the stage, most essential in its urgency, of full affective expression and of the externalization of the individual creator, and through the naturally baroque appearance of certain experiences, we are on the way to a new realism of pure sensibility.
