The Interwar Years (1919)

During the 1950s she became acquainted with the works of avant-garde playwrights such as Eugene Ionesco and Samuel Beckett and produced articles and conference papers on the theatre of the absurd, always stamped with her uncompromising opinions. But she gave up her power to be human. In this brutal massacre 1500 die and 800 are wounded, but the military targets in the town remain intact.
