Galápagos Islands Scuba Diving and Snorkeling Guide

Whereas snorkeling is the total leisure approach to observing the aquatic universe from the surface, skin diving and freediving demand dealing with the hydrostatic pressure that increases as you dive deeper. I believe there is one dive company, Barracuda, in the country and there is just no competition to be better. There are small coral patches and fish to see close in the shallow water, and the main reef is just about 150 meters far from the shore offering excellent snorkeling conditions.
