Half The World Away

Words & Music by Noel Grigsby

L.M. 2/4 = 120

1. I want the to leave this place, this old town, don't you see? And when I come back again, you know it's not the same... but I just...

— can't stand it all. I can't stand it all. I can't stand it all.

re-stay a round, my world, and when I could...

some day, to bad, I book my self-in-a-round trip, in a land...

Jaden blames his adoptive parents for taking him away from the only home he has known. Amy and Louis miss each other, and seem to be too young to have forgotten the look and feel of Freya Blackwood's illustrations. There's no way it could simply be about thinking about a loved one flogging it.

Half a World Away by Mike Gayle

This is a good story about close friends who are separated by half the world - far too common for military families. He is all too aware that he makes life very difficult for his parents.

REVIEW: Half A World Away

There's been many takes on the traditional tale of the different paths those of a certain upbringing are able to take, that it's testament to Mike Gayles strong writing that I was instantly invested in siblings Kerry and Noah reunion after being parted during a traumatic childhood. It also provides an interesting universal dilemma - how do you form a family? They are far apart, emotionally and physically.

Half a World Away Lyrics

As if the words themselves aren't enough of a gift, they are presented to us by the talents of Kayi Ushe and Joanna Brookes who made me feel as if Noah, Kerry and the rest of the cast were performing solely for me, in my own home.
