He's part of a crew that hangs at the local diner. What comes out of that period then is the image of trauma stricken veterans and the image of our political activity as having been cathartic or a kind of acting out of their anger, their hurt and their trauma. Of course, that is the idyllic, mythical America of the 1950s and where were women in the 1950s? Chair: Ken Dvorak San Jacinto College District Colonial House cast members John, Michelle, and Giacomo Voorhees speak about their experiences and insights on the show.
