Administrative law in Namibia, its current state, challenges, and proposals for law reform on JSTOR

Drawing on the extensive networks that the Faculty has established over many years in Africa and beyond, the objective of the ICLA is to become a port of call for those who wish to engage in legal research and legal reform in Africa involving comparative or international law at the advanced level. ICASA generally recognises type approval given by international standards organisations such as the European Telecommunications Standards Association. The empowering provision was the Marine Living Resources Act.

Advanced Administrative Law

It also discusses the main principles of judicial review, and posits that in Namibia the main aim of judicial review is to ensure that administrative bodies and officials act in accordance with the administrative justice requirements under Article 18 of the Namibian Constitution, which embraces and extends the common law principles of review. The President had enacted a set of regulations which, for example, excluded a detainee from having a fair trial.

Mahwanqa v South African Human Rights Commission (11208/2014) [2019] ZAGPJHC 125 (21 February 2019)

It is the nature of the functions performed, as opposed to the nature of the functionary, that is important.

Administrative Law

The municipality has the right to govern, on its own initiative, the local government affairs of its community, subject to national and provincial legislation, as provided for in the Constitution. Courts are not compelled to consider foreign law. The operation of section 33 remained suspended until legislation was enacted in the form of PAJA, which rendered section 33 binding and enforceable.

Administrative Law

The Consumer Protection Act is applicable to the provision of telecommunications services. Judicial review of administrative action through the superior courts is our colonial legacy; the right to administrative justice in s 33 of the Constitution and its companion the Promotion of Administrative Justice Act 3 of 2000 PAJA provide the post-apartheid infrastructure for administrative review.
