Turning now for a rapid glance at the history of Western Pennsylvania, how picturesque it is! It is told apocryphally at Atkinson Morley's Hospital AMH that as soon as Hounsfield had left, the radiologist at Queen's Square took the time to pick up the phone to call the official at the ministry of health who had sent Hounsfield to see him - the official was warned in no uncertain terms never again to waste the radiologists time with crackpot inventors peddling ridiculous contraption ideas such as this. With vehement emphasis he protested against the course pursued by the leaders of the secession movement, depicting the sad scenes which a civil war would introduce.

That of 1791 was specially odious to the people west of the mountains, because, without a home market for the product of their fields, it was, as they regarded, absolutely essential to their existence that they should turn their grain into portable form in the shape of whisky. I trust that your meeting may be both profitable and satisfactory.
