"Nader's Raiders"1968

In the ensuing decades, hundreds more such reports, papers, and books would be published, not only by the Nader groups — i. Petersburg Times Florida , April 12, 1971. David Zwick and his team had a long list of recommendations, including that individual citizens be given the right to sue industrial polluters, and that employees who inform on corporate polluters be rewarded by government and protected by law from reprisals by employers.

Department of Agriculture, the foreign aid programs, occupational licensure, and even the antitrust laws. Sowing the Wind found that USDA was failing to protect Americans from bad meat and dangerous chemicals. Was Jimmy Carter named a member of the Trilateral Commission as soon as it was founded because Rockefeller and the others wanted to hear the wisdom of an obscure Georgia governor? Each of these was linked in organizational or personal relationships with various banks, insurance companies, railroads, utilities, and industrial firms.
