It was roughly the equivalent of winning the Turner Prize, and after all, one just wanted to be shown alongside the best painters in Britain. It is rewarding for all of us to see artists' files grow, and others may be eager to supplement what you have provided. From there he went to the Falmouth School of Art, where the type of painting taught and encouraged was either a conservative, neo-romantic, Euston Road style or else big American colour-field canvases.

Andrzej Jackowski

When hopes of returning to Poland slowly receded, and the Communist regime made it less desirable anyway, young Andrzej was sent to learn English with his half-brother in Nottingham. Their work was featured in several exhibitions at key galleries and museums, including the and the.

'Cooking the world and putting it into images'

Internationally celebrated for his paintings, Professor Jackowski explores images of dispossession, loss and identity. For magazine articles, cite title
