Tiger Rescue: Changing the Future for Endangered Wildlife by Dan Bortolotti, Paperback

What is the tiger's future? In 2010 there are only 3,000 remaining in the wild and an estimated 7,000 to 10,000 in the U. There are currently 348 facilities in this country that hold USDA licenses to use big cats for commercial purposes breeding, selling or exhibiting and there is no public record of what happens to any of them.

Series: Panda rescue

Nearly 70 protected big cats seized from 'Tiger King' park

Unfortunately there are no qualifications needed to name or advertise oneself as a sanctuary so most who claim to be sanctuaries are Breeders and Exhibitors that have renamed themselves as sanctuaries to encourage fundraising by selling the story, when in fact their purpose is to generate additional revenue with no obligation to improve the conditions or lives of the cats.

Tiger Rescue

. And yet the magnificent tiger has found its way into our hearts. .

Nearly 70 protected big cats seized from 'Tiger King' park

. Over 50,000 people who care about big cats are now Advocats. In addition to excellent care for rescued animals, they stand out as a leader in the advocacy work that can stop the abuse and therefore stop the flow of animals needing to be rescued.

for sale online

For all tours, tickets must be purchased in advance. Today tiger inhabit many of these same areas, but in dramatically fewer numbers.

Tiger Rescue

What is the tiger's future? They have a very sophisticated online system that monitors laws related to big cats and makes it very easy for you to add your voice. Exhibitor education is doing more harm than good: In order to justify their tax exempt status, exhibitors say educating the public about wildlife conservation is one of their goals.
