Operational readiness

What are we leaving out? The Results It was quite a week. It should be designed to maximize the value available to the end users and minimize risk associated with the deployment.

Operational readiness

Others were placed on a high priority list for resolution prior to the pending implementation.

Video News

Importantly, the team did not consider the readiness of the end-user community or the organizational feasibility to make the requisite change to the status quo.

Video News

The good news…shifts in behavior are already being seen. More likely, the team was focused on the project end state and did not consider the view, on the ground. Systems are all checked, user acceptance complete, production environment is ready to roll! If all this seems pretty obvious, it apparently is not.
